Artist's Statement:

I created this Bolt Madness advertisement for the Pius X boys basketball, Jr. Bolts program in Canva. I started with a blank page and added each of the elements individually. The first thing I did was make the background an off-white color. I also added a paper texture to it with a lowered opacity. The next thing I did was add in the pictures, change them to black and white, and crop them into those shapes. The pictures were provided by Luke Kessler. I added all the lettering in Bolt Madness and made the text green and gold. My next step was adding the gold boxes from the Canva elements. I then added all the additional black text with all the information for the event. My final step was adding a slight grain texture over the whole thing and lowering the opacity of it. This poster took many different attempts to perfect the design.
