

We walk into the commons before school starts and talk to our friends at the tables.

The office ladies strike up conversations with us while they sign our temporary lanyards.

“Mr. P. and I talk about his wife and his family and he writes something on his board about me every day.”
(Nolan Wemhoff, junior)

Walking through the hallway, we have quick conversations with friends as we head to our next period.

When we make up tests in the library, Mrs. Willis wishes us good luck with our test.

We spend a few minutes in the chapel after stopping in the campus ministry office and chatting with Fr. Froeschl.

“I never stop talking to Maestra in Spanish class and I get so many pesos in class.” (Elizabeth Preister, senior)

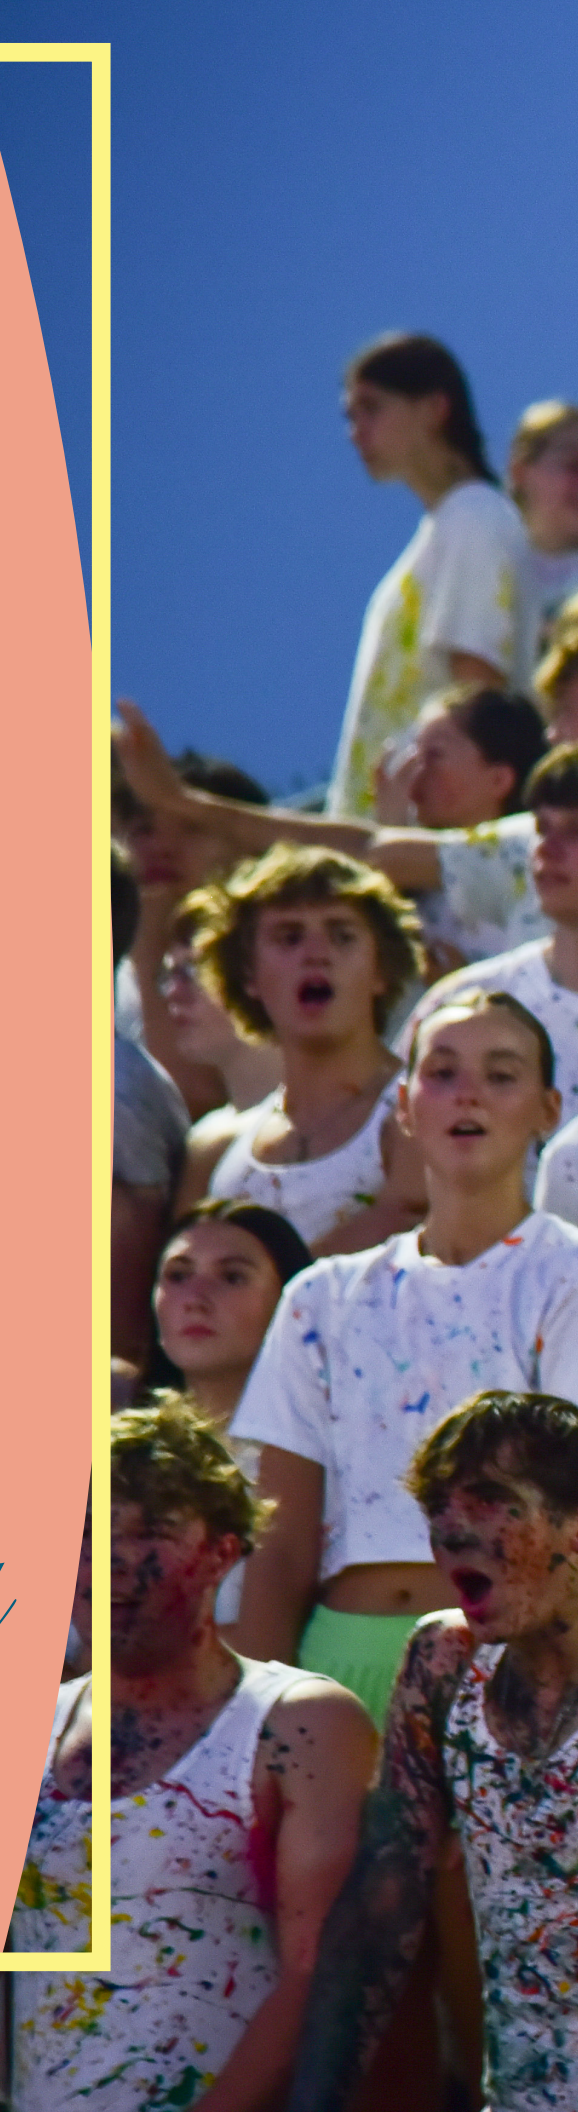

The cafeteria is always filled with laughter and conversation.

“At dive practice, I talk to all my friends around the pool.”
(Nolan Sellhorn, junior)

In the evening, we walk into the basketball game and see the student section filled with roaring excitement.

We stop and think...

HOW Lucky ARE WE
