

Ward, Rylee

When creating this illustration for the cover of the Valentine high school yearbook cover, I began by picking a theme and sketching out multiple designs. I then took reference pictures of the parking lot, badger memorial field, and the view next to it. From there, I decided on a color scheme and started drawing on the software Procreate. I began by color mapping the shapes of objects in the drawing then I proceeded to draw the sky, including the stars, moon, cloud, and my signature in the corner. Then I drew the parking lot and far off field. After that, I drew the building in front of the badger memorial field, the red truck, and the parking lot details. To tie it all together, I created all the word art and input pictures of students over the years into the letters of Valentine. I drew this cover to resemble a vintage postcard, to showcase Valentine's unique past, and bright future.
