

Table of Contents:

Stick
Together
4-69

SPEAKING UP
AND OUT. Sophomore
Angelica Galindo
passionately
speaks at a home
speech meet.
"Quote," said Galindo. Photo by Justyce McCloud

Glued to the Game
70-113

STUCK ON THE FIELD. Freshman
Danielle Watters swings to score at the Scottsbluff vs.
Gering game. ""
said Watters.
Photo by Mark Rein.

Clung onto Clubs
114- 163

STUCK TO STRINGS. Senior Benjamin Ayala
playing his viola
at his last fall
orchestra concert.
"My favorite part about orchestra is how fun it is and the challenging songs we get to play," said Ayala.
Photo by Missy Armstrong.

Adhere to Ads
164-195

SPIKE IT. Junior Ryley Collins swings for a serve at a tennis tournament. "," said Collins. *Photo
by David Sheldon*

Stuck to the Memories

Some moments fade the second they pass. Others stay, quietly, stubbornly, stitched into who we are. This year was made of those moments.

The hallway laughter that echoed long after the bell rang. The late nights, early mornings, and inside jokes no one else would fully understand. Wins that felt unreal. Losses that taught us more than we wanted to learn. Ordinary days that somehow became unforgettable.

We were stuck in the chaos, the growth, the figuring-it-out. Stuck in routines that became comfort. Stuck in friendships that felt like home. Stuck in memories we didn't know were being made until they were already behind us.

This yearbook holds more than faces and names. It holds snapshots of who we were in these moments. A reminder of the people, places, and feelings that shaped us. No matter how far we go, a part of us will always be here, stuck to the memories we made together.

This was our year.

And we'll carry it with us always.

LOUD AND PROUD. Junior Maryanne Winterbottom sings her heart out in her solo at Old West Choir Fest. "I love Old West because we get to perform for such a large and vibrant crowd," said Winterbottom. Photo by David Sheldon

THROWING UP SPIRIT. Senior Allison Baer smiles big as she throws a shirt into the stands during a crowd involvement. "My favorite part about throwing shirts is it can make a person's day! The crowd gets so hype!" said Baer. Photo by Mark Rein.

CATCH THE WAVE. Junior Marley Wineman raises her hands in the wave as she helps Link Crew welcome the new incoming freshman at freshman orientation. "My favorite part about Link Crew is getting to help out the freshmen and watching them grow more confident in the school," said Wineman. Photo by Marqui Keim.

