Artist statement: For the "Compliment Box" poster, I started with a blank canvas in Canva and built the layout from scratch. I wrote all of the wording myself and organized the information clearly and simply. What it is, how it works, when, and the rules. I chose pink and red tones because it was close to Valentine's Day when I made it. I used Canva elements for the hearts, banners, and decorative borders, but I arranged them so they had some balance throughout the poster. I selected a bold font for the title to grab the attention of the readers and the simpler fonts for the instructions, so it was easily readable. The entire process took about half an hour to forty-five minutes. My goal was to make an eye-catching poster that students could easily understand and would make students eager to participate.
